Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Saturday 03 Jul 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Unsettled with showers, warm in any sunshine.

Today:
Scattered showers, occasionally heavy, drifting north through the day, perhaps some longer spells of rain in the south this afternoon. Northern Isles and northeast mainland mainly dry, haar around some coastal areas. Quite warm.

Tonight:
Showers gradually easing through the evening, although the odd shower continuing through the night. Northern Isles seeing haar and a little drizzle. A warm night.

Sunday:
Warm with some bright or sunny intervals and scattered heavy showers. although northeastern areas and the Northern Isles may remain rather cool and dull.

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
An unsettled few days with scattered heavy showers or some longer spells of rain. Low cloud may affect coastal areas at times. Warm in any sunshine.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.